

Greetings!

On behalf of the Muscular Dystrophy Canada staff, board members, volunteers, and most importantly, the neuromuscular disorder community, thank you for joining us at this year's Champions of Change Conference! I am so pleased that you will be joining us to learn more about how to break down barriers for the neuromuscular disorder community.

This conference brings together a wide array of partners, who share your dedication to making a difference for people affected by neuromuscular disorders across the country. Throughout the day, you will learn, through seminars and interactive presentations, about disability etiquette, working with government on advocacy initiatives and tips and tricks planning your fundraising event.

A very special thank you to the hard work and dedication of a number of Muscular Dystrophy Canada staff including members of the Philanthropy, Volunteer Engagement, Human Resources and Marketing & Communications departments, for their hard work and dedication in delivering this conference. A great deal of their time, effort and commitment went into making this day a reality and I know they are as thrilled to have you here as I am. We hope you enjoy the day and leave with new skills and a renewed commitment to our mission; to break down barriers for the neuromuscular disorder community.

Thank you for being a partner to our community and for joining us at this year's Champions of Change Conference. Enjoy the day!

Sincerely,

Stacey Lintern
CEO, Muscular Dystrophy Canada
